

November 18, 2014

Tricia Elam Walker
Assoc. Director, Center for Excellence in Teaching
Simmons College, P113A
(617) 521-2038
patricia.elam@simmons.edu

Dr. Laura Saunders
SLIS

Dear Dr. Saunders,

Thank you for your participation in the Center for Excellence in Teaching's Focus on Teaching Seminar today. The topic was "Promoting Active Learning and Engagement through Classroom Assessment Techniques (CATs)". Dr. Kathryn Linder, Director of the Center for Teaching and Scholarly Excellence at Suffolk University, gave a presentation with examples of CATs and ideas for how to implement them in classrooms of various disciplines.

The CET's Focus on Teaching Seminars are offered a few times during the school year, usually as an exchange between the CET staff members and staff from other local Teaching and Learning centers. The sessions ordinarily involve an area of expertise of the staff member that is also a topic of interest to each college community. These events are open to and attended by full and part-time faculty and staff as well as outside participants.

Your attendance today demonstrates a dedication, openness, and willingness to explore your own methods of teaching. We hope that the ideas and techniques presented in this event will help you in your efforts to improve overall teaching and learning at Simmons College.

Thank you again for your participation,

Tricia Elam Walker