Good morning,

Please allow me to introduce myself. My name is Joanna, and I am a doctoral candidate with Argosy University. While pondering what I wanted to do for my doctoral research project, I came across your dissertation.

Exploring information literacy fits perfectly with my interests in accreditation, moving into middle management, and librarianship.

The long and the short of it is, I would like to do a similar study using data from a different regional accrediting body, namely SACS.

My question is, would you be willing to entertain periodic questions from a scholar as they try to follow in your footsteps? ☺

Cheers,

Joanna Blough

Dear Prof Laura,

A very good afternoon. Trust my email will find you in best health and spirit.

Let me introduce myself. I am undersigned, doing PhD in Library and Information Science at Sambalpur University on Library Innovation in Business Schools in India: An Empirical Study, where Strategic plans and trends in different libraries in India is one of its variable.

I have gone through your paper Academic Libraries' Strategic Plans: Top Trends and Under-Recognized Areas, which I found worthy for me after reading

I would be highly thankful if you could send me the questionnaire that has been used for collection of data. Please be assured that your response will be treated with strict confidential and will be used for research purpose only.

Thanking you

Greetings Dr. Saunders,

I am a doctoral candidate in Applied Technology, Performance Improvement at the Department of Learning Technologies at the University of North Texas. For my dissertation, I am conducting a review of syllabi of Management and HR programs in public and private universities in Texas. The purpose of my study is to provide a snapshot of current HR and Management curricula of four-year public and private universities in Texas in 2016 to evaluate their alignment with the HR competencies and sub competencies put forth in the SHRM (Society of Human Resource Management) Competency Model®.

I read your article "Education for instruction: A review of LIS Instruction Syllabi" published in The Reference Librarian in 2015 with genuine interest. I am developing a scoring rubric/codebook for my particular study. I was wondering if you would be so kind to please share the codebook (or a portion of it) with me?

I would be most grateful as I am looking for a way to simplify the questions.

Thank you,

Mariya Gavrilova Aguilar

Dear Mariya,

I am so sorry it has taken me so long to get back to you. I am attaching the codebook here, and I only ask that you keep it confidential. I'm excited to hear about your work in this area— if you would ever like to talk more, please don't hesitate to get in touch.

Dear Mrs. Saunders,

I read your article Academic libraries' strategic plans : Top trends and under-recognized areas, published in The journal of academic librarianship. I found it very interesting. We would like to translate it in Bulgarian. It can be published in the professional journal BBIA online – this is the journal of Bulgarian library and information association where I am member of the editorial board.

I am writing you in order to permit us to translate and publish the article. It will be very useful for the academic librarians in Bulgaria.

Best regards,

Dear Beth,

I just received this request to translate my new article in JAL into Bulgarian. I've never received anything like this before– I would love to do it, but I wanted to check and be sure I wouldn't be violating any copyright?

Would you be able to advise?

Thank you,

Laura.

Hello Professor Saunders,

I am the PI on an Assessment in Action project (ACRL AiA 2014-15 cohort) focused on the influence of instructional collaboration between discipline and library faculty on student performance.

I am writing to see how I might gain permission to use or adapt your faculty survey included in your 2012 article

Faculty Perspectives on Information Literacy as a Student Learning Outcome. Journal Of Academic Librarianship, 38(4), 226-236.

We would be delighted to share our results!

The team has been very appreciative of your work in the IL field. Looking forward to hearing from you.
