

Tabular Data for Simmons College

Note to program: It may be helpful to you to look at the survey text as a reference while reading this report because some of the questions are shortened or reversed in the table captions. These tables appear in the order of the survey questions. The tables are also known as “frequency” tables. They simply present the number of times a particular response was given to a particular survey question, and the percentage that a particular response represents of the total responses to the question (see the valid percent column). Means and standard deviations are provided when appropriate. Lengthy text responses and job titles are not included in this report; please see your text responses report for these qualitative data. While short free-text responses are included here for your interest, the percentages should be viewed with caution because the responses have not been recoded into meaningful categories.

Missing data is coded in two ways: system-missing generally means that the respondent was not presented the question because of skip-logic; asked but not answered means that the respondent was presented the question, but left the question blank/unanswered. Occasionally some of the system-missing items may also represent respondent skips. Remember, the number of responses varies from question to question because of skip-logic and blanks (some respondents skipped a particular question or did not fully complete the survey).

Other notes to help you interpret this data are provided with the individual tables.
